Selin Bülbul is the Business Development Manager for Straife.

After graduating from California State University, Northridge, Turkey, Selin served several years as a former foreign service commercial specialist in the Department of State and Commerce, assisting U.S. companies in successfully exporting to Turkey. Based in Istanbul, she specializes in International Trade and Development, counseling private corporations on various U.S. government trade incentive programs. She has also provided companies with sanctions and compliance services. With over a decade of experience, Selin has helped U.S. companies partner with international businesses in a myriad of industries.

Selin is passionate about sustainable practices, guiding businesses on ESG investments and green energy projects.
